Recognizing the dramatic changes in today's integrated Telecommunications market and the clear need for a new kind of summit that fully reflects the industry's continuing evolution, Katia Tayar CEO of Arabcomgroup organizer of Arabcom, announced her plans for ARABCOM 06, a revolutionary industry conference and exhibition that will bring together players of the digital age.

In its 9th year running, ARABCOM 2006 the 9th International Telecom Development summit for the Arab states will focus on "Next Generation Networks" an event which analyses the most up to date topics in the industry. The Summit presentations and discussions will focus on: Fixed Mobile Convergence, NGN, HSPA, IPTV, WiMax Versus HSDPA, Tripple Play, Security and Mobile content

Several Arab Ministers of Telecom and many Operators have already confirmed their participation in addition to more than 300 International delegates. The list of keynote speakers reads like a who's who of communications industry insiders, including Telecom Ministers, CEOs from top GSM operators, wire line carriers, wireless providers, equipment manufacturers, content providers and policymakers.

Delegates will hear for the 1st time Ministers and Operators CEO discussing their future plans and vision concerning the Next Generation Networks deployment and new services.

"Consumers in the Arab region are beginning to experience the true capabilities of 3G wireless services. However, as consumers' appetite for a broad range of high-speed data services accelerate, so too does demand for bandwidth, and already the limitations of today's available networks' capabilities is being questioned "

"ARABCOM 06" will be a unique and exciting forum showcasing the services, technologies and products that will define business success in the digital age"
